PROFILE OF THE REGION

Temiskaming Shores & Surrounding Areas

South Temiskaming

South Temiskaming is a vital and thriving group of communities along the scenic western shore of Lake Temiskaming. The District of Temiskaming shares its border with the Province of Quebec and consequently the district is a diverse mix of both French and English as well as Aboriginal cultures. We believe our communities have something for everyone. They are rich in pioneer history; we are home to one of Canada's legendary frontier mining camps. For those looking for the comforts of civilizations, we offer a wide range of retail and commercial services. Our events, festivals and attractions will entertain your whole family, while highlighting the treasures of Temiskaming.

Did you know?
South Temiskaming is home to one of Canada's legendary frontier mining camps

The City of Temiskaming Shores

(formerly New Liskeard, Haileybury, and Dymond) consists of a population of about 10,500 residents. Temiskaming Shores is the commercial hub of a huge agricultural, forestry and mining region. A strong agricultural base has minimized the "boom and bust cycle", typical of northern communities which relied on the mining and forestry industry. Most of the City's agriculture is done in the surrounding townships such as; Armstrong, Casey, Harley, Harris, Hudson and Kerns. The land in this area is regarded as some of the most fertile land in the South Temiskaming region. The citizens of Temiskaming Shores all share the typical friendly attitude so common to Northerners along with a love for the outdoor life. Aside from being the key retail centre in the region, Temiskaming Shores has much to offer in the way of things to do. The Temiskaming Shores area is rich in fascinating history. Many visitors are amazed to find that Haileybury once had a streetcar service as well as being home to the man who authored "the first 19" of the world-famous Hardy Boys adventure stories–Leslie McFarlane who wrote under the name Franklin W. Dixon. Haileybury's origins can be traced to the mining industry. The mine owners, not wanting to live right in the mining town, built beautiful homes close to the lake. Haileybury is also home to the Haileybury Heritage Museum and Historic Rockwalk Park.

CAN'T MISS EXPERIENCES

Township of Armstrong and Historical Cobalt

Earlton

The Town of Earlton or Armstrong Township is located in the area historically referred to as Temiskaming's "Clay Belt" and is known for a strong agricultural presence and the dairy centre of the north. Located at the centre of the most fertile stretch of agriculture property in the "north", Earlton has a population of approximately 1200 and is also host to numerous manufacturing industries and specialized service companies. Earlton was the host of the 2009 Temiskaming International Plowing Match and Rural Expo which attracted thousands of visitors to the area.

Cobalt

The discovery of a rich vein of silver essentially "paved" Canada's centre of commerce… a discovery that heralded a new era in mining and development, with tonnes of silver extracted from the camp, solidifying the foundations of modern day's Bay Street. A saying at the time was "Toronto? That's just the place you go to get the train to Cobalt." Cobalt saw the operation of over 120 mines in its heyday. With the air of a "wild west" town, fortune seekers arrived in droves at the train station in Cobalt. The town was teeming with excitement at every corner. The Royal Stock Exchange; a first-class vaudevillian theatre, with acts straight from Broadway; a streetcar line; a national league hockey team; and one of the first two District Headquarters for the Ontario Provincial Police–all of this in Cobalt. Investors, dreamers, shopkeepers and workers: they built this town. The fortunes of mine owners and entrepreneurs bore legacies such as Casa Loma, in Toronto, and funds for the purchase of a hockey team that would eventually become one of the NHL's "original six" – the Montreal Canadiens. The workers played a vital role in establishing modern standards of safety and workers' compensation. By the 1930s, the silver had nearly run out, and like all boomtowns, one by one, and then in droves, as they had come, mine owners and labourers packed up and left. But Cobalt means more than just sepia-toned memories. Unlike other famous mining boom towns, Cobalt was never left uninhabited. The Cobalt silver camp is now a protected Canadian government Heritage District. The community boasts the title of "Most Historic Town in Ontario". The incredible, almost romantic, experiences have not been laid to ashes and silver dust. From those ashes sprang forth new life, new growth and new opportunity. From here, we invite you to explore Historic Cobalt. It's been revitalized. In this setting, explore its illustrious past. It is a truly unique tourism destination. It is the cradle of Canadian mining. It is Canadian spirit, pure and true. It is Cobalt spirit. Come for a day – discover a century.

The Grey Sisters of Ottawa, who had arrived the previous year, then established the first hospital of the Timiskaming District in the old presbytery. In 1878 a frame church, known as St. Claude's, was completed. However, in 1887 the mission was moved to the growing agricultural settlement of Ville Marie in Quebec.

Tourism Information Centre, New Liskeard

Big Pete bought the power site at Chester Falls from Tom Chester and a dam was built above these falls on the south branch of the Wabi River. In 1910, Farah sold Pete's Dam and its assets to the Northern Ontario Light and Power Company. New Liskeard then received its power from the lines that linked them to Cobalt, its neighbour to the south. The exact date the power plant went out of service is unknown, but it is believed that it was in the 1920s. The Northern Ontario Power Company sold its assets to the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario which included Pete's Dam. In 1981, Dymond Township bought the property and it is now known as Pete's Dam Park. The little electric plant no longer exists but the beauty of the waterfall and rapids draws many locals and visitors for picnicking and hiking.
